Covid 19, public health and necropolitics in Brazil

Marcos Cueto (History of Science, Casa de Oswaldo Cruz, Fundação Oswaldo Cruz, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil)

Abstract: For most of the pandemic Brazil has had the second highest COVID-related death toll in the world. Drawing on theoretical insights from social history, Marcos Cueto will examine how Brazil’s official response to Coronavirus was marked by a government who ignored glaring social inequalities and believed that the lives of some of the poor were disposable.
