

Interested in Latin America? Thinking about postgraduate study?

Come to an

Open Event

held by the Centre of Latin American Studies
University of Cambridge

5.00-6.30pm on Friday 1 November

2nd Floor, Alison Richard Building
7 West Road, Cambridge, CB3 9EF

There will be a short presentation, followed by refreshments and an opportunity to chat informally to course tutors and current students.

The MPhil in Latin American Studies at Cambridge is a multidisciplinary course, offering a range of modules that combine perspectives from anthropology, sociology, development studies, history, politics, political economy, urban studies, literature, cinema, and the visual arts. Students also prepare a dissertation with the individual guidance of world-class researchers in the field. The MPhil provides excellent preparation for doctoral research, but also for careers in development, journalism, policy, business or government. See www.latin-american.cam.ac.uk/mphil for more information.

Students interested in applying for a PhD in Latin American Studies are also very welcome, and will be able to find out more about research facilities at the Centre, the application process, and funding opportunities. See www.latin-american.cam.ac.uk/phd for more information.
